These architectural pieces designed by one of the most reputable architects appear to float in mid-air and their location in itself sets a thoroughly desirable precedent. Their interior design features echo the formal lines of the architecture, adding a new dimension to contemporary and luxurious living. Transitions between the outside and inside disappear, as the vast windows retract completely, opening up the view directly to the Mediterranean. The interiors preside over a bright living area with high ceilings and several bedroom suites holding great appeal as a private retreat. Other genuine highlights include an enormous basement space with unlimited possibilities.
